Welcome to ICPC Asia Yokohama Regional Contest!

It is my great pleasure to welcome all of you to the ICPC Asia Yokohama Regional Contest 2025.

The Institute of Science Tokyo, established through the merger of Tokyo Institute of Technology and Tokyo Medical and Dental University in October 2024, is now entering its second year. It is a great honor for us to host the Asia-Pacific Regional Contest again this year as a new, unified university.

Last year marked our first time hosting the Asia-Pacific Regional Contest as the Institute of Science Tokyo. Building on that experience, we are delighted to welcome everyone back to Yokohama. We are confident that the contestants share our excitement in gathering here once again for an in-person competition.

On July 4, 2025, a total of 355 teams from 92 universities across Japan participated in the Japan Online Contest. From these, 56 teams from 40 universities advanced to this ICPC Asia Yokohama Regional Contest. In addition, we are pleased to welcome 8 teams from 6 universities in the Asia-Pacific region outside Japan. Altogether, 64 teams from 46 universities are competing in this year's Yokohama Regional Contest.

We believe that this contest provides an exceptional opportunity for students to demonstrate the programming skills they have honed through dedication and effort. It also offers a valuable space where students from diverse backgrounds can exchange ideas, learn from each other, and build lasting friendships.

This contest would not have been possible without the support and hard work of many individuals and organizations. We express our deepest gratitude to Mr. Mitsuru Kusumoto and the judging team, who devoted countless hours to preparing the problem set. We are also thankful to the ICPC Board members for their guidance and to the International Information Science Foundation for their important behind-the-scenes contributions. Our sincere appreciation goes to the ICPC secretaries for their technical expertise and continuous support.

We would also like to thank all the volunteers, including the ICPC Japanese Alumni Group and student volunteers from the Institute of Science Tokyo, for their tireless dedication. In addition, we are grateful to our industry sponsors, whose generous financial support made this event possible. Finally, we extend our heartfelt thanks to all participants—both those competing here today and those who took part in the preliminary rounds.

To every contestant participating in this year's regional contest, we wish you the very best of luck. Enjoy the competition, challenge yourself, and make the most of this exciting experience.
